My dear Sir:

I have this day written to the three gentlemen whose names you so kindly furnished me yesterday.

As I informed you, I was just ready to sail, and the probabilities are that I will not change my mind, and get off on Tuesday.

Therefor, as I have only one set of details of what the collection consists of, I have written these gentlemen, informing them that in the case of my sailing, I will send you the list of the collection, which will be placed at their disposal by you upon request.

I, personally, know nothing about numismatics, and as I said, it is a white elephant for me to deal with the matter.

Should anything come up after my return, I take pleasure in giving you my address in Buenos Aires, at foot. I have done likewise with the parties written to.

Thanking you again for your courtesy and attention, believe me,

Very truly yours,

A. E. de Hoch
